

General And State Telegraph Matter

Things Occurring At National Capitol--Suffragists On March

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.

The movement of United States ships to Central America, which became fully known today, put the Central American legations in a flutter, and sent Latin-American ministers hurrying to assure Secretary Knox that all was tranquil in their countries.

Before noon practically all the ministers had communicated with the state department to inquire the reason for the naval demonstration and to disclaim the existence of conditions that indicated trouble.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.

Boy scouts will be given an opportunity to demonstrate the value of their training on inauguration day. Between five and six hundred scouts will aid in taking care of those who require medical assistance, either among the marchers or among the spectators. Their special duty will be to wig wag for ambulances. In addition a large number of boy scouts will act as litter carriers. Another aid to the hospital corps will be twenty-five telephones located along the parade route. These will be connected by private telephone wires with police headquarters, where the main first aid station will be located. Also there will be fully equipped emergency hospitals to care for injuries.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.

Monday is the day fixed by the senate for taking a final vote on the much discussed Sheppard-Kenyon bill prohibiting shipments of liquor into states where prohibition laws are in effect.

Hearings in the suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation are to be resumed Monday. The government has practically concluded its introduction of evidence. The corporation will now present its side of the case. Among its witnesses probably will be Judge Elbert M. Gary, chairman of the corporation; James A. Farrell, president, and Henry C. Frick and others of the directors.

The two houses of congress will meet in joint session in the hall at the house on Wednesday for the purpose of counting the electoral votes and formally declaring the election of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas H. Marshall as president and vice-president, respectively.

Monday morning is the time set for the start of the suffragists from New York city on their "hike" to Washington. The marchers expect to arrive in the capital on March 1, in time to participate in the great suffragist parade and demonstration to be held on the eve of the inauguration of President Wilson.

Wednesday, the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, will be observed as usual in many parts of the country. One of the most notable features of the celebration will be the dedication of Lincoln Hall, a magnificent building erected at the University of Illinois as a memorial to Lincoln.

Progressive leaders from all parts of the country will attend the Lincoln Birthday banquet at the Hotel Astor in New York city. Colonel Roosevelt and former Senator Beveridge of Indiana will be the principal speakers.

Missouri republicans will hold a banquet in Kansas City, with Governor Eberhart of Minnesota as the chief speaker. Baron Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, will speak at the banquet of the Lincoln Memorial association in Springfield, Ill., and Senator Borah of Idaho will be heard at a similar gathering in Baltimore.

The late Vice-President James S. Sherman will be honored by memorial services in the senate Saturday. President Taft, his cabinet and a large number of distinguished people will attend.

Michigan republicans will hold a state convention at Lansing Tuesday to name candidates for the supreme court bench and minor state offices to be voted for at the spring election.

Brig. Gen. James Allen, chief signal officer of the army, will reach the age limit for active service Thursday. On the same day Rear Admiral Joseph B. Murdock will be retired from the navy on account of age.

Other events of the week will include the schedule meetings of the American and National baseball leagues in New York city, the meeting of the legislative assemblies in Alberta and Nova Scotia, and a special convocation of Queen's University, at Kingston, Ont., to confer the honorary degree of L. L. D. on the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada.

Wife and daughters of Heathcote S. Grant.

A recent addition to the diplomatic set at Washington was Mrs. Heathcote S. Grant, wife of the naval attache of the British embassy. Although she is very popular socially she prefers spending a large part of her time with her three charming little daughters. Her children are quite as fond of their mama as she is of them. Three brighter little maids could not be found in the national capital.

CONGRESS IS CROWDING HALL

Increase in National Lower House Presents Serious Problem of Lack of Room

TO REMODEL CHAMBER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The house of representatives is in the same fix as the old woman who lived in the shoe, who had so many children she didn't know what to do.

The house has so many members it doesn't know just what to do with all of them; that is, doesn't know just what accommodations should be provided for them. In the next house there will be 435 members, providing all the seats are filled. This is forty more than at present, and there are now only about enough offices to go around, so that each representative of the people shall have a sanctum sanctorum of his own where he can receive the folks from home and any body else that happens to have business with him.

Plans have been suggested for remodeling the house chamber, and they would undoubtedly be carried out next summer but for the fact that the house is expected to be in session nearly all of the summer wrestling with the tariff and divers subjects of legislation which will probably be called to their attention by President Wilson.

When the present congress goes out March 4 the first change will be made looking to greater facilities for representatives. It is expected that the house will be convened again within two weeks after that date, so that any changes in the chamber will necessarily have to be made in quick fashion.

During this brief period every desk in the house will be taken out and benches substituted. Elliott Woods, superintendent of the Capitol, told the house leader that he would be unable to provide desks for all the representatives, so it was decided to authorize him to put in benches instead.

Spectators at the opening of the sixty-third congress on or about March 15 will witness in the house a spectacle that has never been witnessed before. They will see a reproduction—at least in some respects—of the English house of commons.

Representatives will rub elbows while seated at long benches. No more will they have the comfortable arm chairs and desks that they have had for years. Members who like to stand up and lean against the front of a desk while making a speech will find themselves in a strange place. If they have any papers or books that they wish to use in debate they will have to carry them in from some place outside, put them on the bench alongside and cart them away after the day's session is over.

It is now customary that members should have on their desks copies of the Congressional Record or latest numbers for handy reference. Just where these copies will be kept or what means will be taken to supply members with handy copies of the Record is not known.

There is much interest to know what effect the new seating arrangements will have on the attendance of members and also on the length of debate. Some persons believe that if the benches are not so comfortable as the desks and arm chairs there will be less long-winded debate and the net result will be shorter sessions of congress. Obstreperous members who like to raise points of order and involve the house in half splitting questions of parliamentary procedure, it is argued, will soon get tired of spending long hours on the benches and will give less trouble when the house leaders are trying to put on the high speed and clear their desks of necessary business.

A DIFFERENCE

It Paid This Man to Change Food
"What is called 'good living' eventually brought me to a condition quite the reverse of 'good health,'" writes a New York merchant.

"I'm not eating told on me till my stomach became so weak that food nauseated me, even the lightest and simplest lunch, and I was much depressed after a night of uneasy slumber, unfitting me for business."

"This condition was discouraging, as I could find no way to improve it. Then I saw the advertisement of Grape-Nuts food, and decided to try it, and became delighted with the result."

"For the past three years I have used Grape-Nuts and nothing else for my breakfast and for lunch before retiring. It speedily set my stomach right and I congratulate myself that I have regained my health. There is no greater comfort for a tired man than a lunch of Grape-Nuts. It is healthy, little rasped, weighing 32 pounds. Much more certainly owns a debt of gratitude to the expert who invented this perfect food." Name given by Postum Co., Little Creek, Mich.
